January 27, 2015 Meeting

Observing the Ukrainian Elections: Paint Patriotism, Auto Patriotism and Winning by Giving

At the January meeting, Borys Gengalo spoke on the topic, Observing the Ukrainian Elections: Paint Patriotism, Auto Patriotism and Winning by Giving.

Borys has visited Ukraine on several occasions relating to elections and military affairs. He described the many recent changes in Ukraine and provided the members with his interesting and perceptive insights based on his observations as a long-term election monitor. He presented a well-prepared selection of photos and illustrations of everything from licence plates to painted cars, from billboards to doughnuts to capture the feel of these changes.

He described Ukraine as a virtually bankrupt state faced with an on-going war, and a profoundly corrupt state mechanism with impossibly high expectations from its citizens. Despite these negative features, he expressed reasons for optimism. More specifically, he spoke on living conditions, security issues, the general political situation, Ukrainian political parties, electoral law and mechanisms, relevant non-governmental organizations, the role of women in the electoral process and role and responsibilities of election workers.

He mentioned that the electoral workers placed overwhelming stress on complying with all electoral regulations and procedures which complicated and delayed the production of election results. Borys provided some examples of electoral abuses, the use of western European symbolism and style, and the use of blue and yellow in election signage.

He also mentioned the general and pervasive use of 'notaries' when conducting any business with government departments which further complicated daily life in Ukraine.

Borys Gengalo presenting at our January meeting

Borys identified a fundamental problem in the present over-centralized Ukrainian constitution where the only independent source of income for local municipal authorities was fees from parking limiting any financial autonomy at the local level. This situation has no doubt contributed to the present on-going crisis in Ukraine.

The presentation was followed by a question-and-answer session.

Genealogical Sources on the Internet

Welcome to Alberta Genweb
